Dear Bibliophile,

Thanks very much for your letter, and your offer. I have a similar edition of Themistius, but what I am looking for is the edition by Dindorf (I believe, 1827). Until [Glanville] Downey comes out with his, it is the authoritative one. But it was very nice of you to think of me while browsing through the London book shops. Thanks also for your call. It was nice to hear your voice again, and of a sudden you were present here.

I just came back from a visit in Worthington, Ohio, a new address which you should know for my 70th birthday: 680 Hartford St. My sister bought a very nice house there with an enviably large garden in which you could grow anything. I am glad I do not have it because I would spend many hours daily in it just fooling about and planting anything the catalogues would offer me.

Otherwise everything is all right, and I am happy not to be as busy, busy, busy as you are, though again I am fooling about. Have you had any answer from Cal Press?

Love

EKa. [Signed]
