Dear young applicant for membership,

Here is your "Outline." I would drop the last paragraph completely and stress, above all, the edition of Terre Rouge as your pièce de resistance. But you may mention the Henri II medals. After all, we encourage substantial work rather than the writing of articles. And it is always wiser to concentrate on one big trick rather than enumerating too many projects.

Thanks for your letter. Erich Kahler told me to tell you that he would gladly act as the go-between to the Bollingen Foundation, because he seems to know them very well, and actually they had asked him about me some time ago. So you just get in contact with Kahler. Ihor [Ševčenko], however, has met the Bollingen man and can do something from his end.

Last night, at a farewell dinner for Elmer Beller, young Arno Mayer asked me about you. He just became full professorat P.U. I did not know that you were friends. He is a nice man, and his wife is, pure et simple, beautiful, step-daughter of a former Miss America, but could be Miss anything in her own right.

No other news. I am expecting [Maurice] Bowra beginning of June. And I shall have plenty of wines for you to sample.

Love

EKa. [Signed]

Our friend Betty Horton¹ has just undergone a disagreeable operation, a cyst in the breast. But she seems all right again and the main thing: it is not malignant.
