O-Harten L'Organisation Corporation CA v Off. Royaux

[Xerox marked]

O-H's explanation of the corporate control over membership, of protecting the corps' rights vs other corps, against amalgamations etc by creating a common course to distribute burden, show that the ^{individual} officers involved were not autonomous. Just as they were advancing a diachronic patrimonial advantage they were bound to a synchronic corporate organization.

If a undertake this correctly, officers Royaux had a true self-conscious class interest, the key element of which was the exercise of public power
