Medical History of Contraception (N. Y.: Ganut Press, 1963; first pub. in 1936 by National Committee on Maternal Health, Inc.)

Pioneering work in history of attitudes and practices regarding contraception. Chap. VI says that by early middle ages knowledge of birth control practices forgotten; as views of Church on sexuality and procreation bec. dominant, birth control became "unthinkable" (same view as Ariès).
